

What's Happening at Wantagh Public Library

November - December 2018

From the Director's Desk:

Happy Holidays!

This electronic newsletter is the first of many such newsletters we will begin sending to your e-mailbox and, for library staff, the excitement is building. We are very pleased to get this newsletter into your hands faster and with expanded pages, which means more complete descriptions and coverage of our many programs, training classes and avenues of information about research sources.

Of course, a limited number of hard copies of the newsletter will always be available at the front desk.

With the Holidays just around the corner, do you need ideas for upcoming Holiday outings? Try a museum pass, available at the library! We have so many to choose from. The Frick Museum, located in New York City, honors the past through art and artifacts while it tips a hat to the future; it's a great way to spend the day with family and friends – and all courtesy of your library.

Or try a new research product. "The Pronunciator," for example, is a great way to learn a new language. If you will be traveling abroad, this product gives tips and tricks to help you make sense of the new language and begin speaking it quickly. It's so easy. We can help you to sign on and get started.

Let the Wantagh Public Library be a place to experience the coming season's Holiday fun while it enhances your everyday education.

The trustees and staff of the Wantagh Public Library wish all patrons a safe and joyous Holiday season.
